CANADA BECOMING A TRADE FACTOR

Wonderful Increase in Its Foreign Exports Has Been Reported.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—(Special.)—Canada's trade continues to expand, its commerce with the United States exceeding all previous records. Consul Deal, at St. Johns, in a report to the department of state on this subject says: "A statement just prepared by the customs department shows Canada's trade with foreign countries continues to expand with surprising rapidity for a country of less than 6,000,000 population. The total trade of the Dominion during the last fiscal year exceeded $400,000,000, or about double that of the year 1890, which was the greatest year in the history of the country."

Constantly Increasing

"The statement shows that while the great bulk of Canada's business is transacted with the United States and Great Britain, the former country, as usual, profits the most, and the rate of increase shows no sign of diminishing. England is the great selling market for many of Canada's products, but the United States is still her principal purchasing market, the preferential tariff on British goods having made no appreciable change in this respect."

Large Figures.

"The excess of trade with the United States over that of Great Britain last year was $32,500,000. Imports from the United States increased over $10,000,000 and exports to the United States over $3,000,000. In fact, the total import and export trade of Canada with the United States is nearly one-half her own foreign trade, being for the last year $192,005,461. Canada's third best customer is Germany."

INJURED IN SALOON

Was Struck by an Unknown Assailant While Drinking in Beer Hall.

RAPID TRANSIT SUBWAY COMPLETE

At the Cost of $21,000,000 and Twenty-Four Lives—An Interesting Work.

New York, September 16.—Special.—After an expenditure of $21,000,000 and the sacrifice of twenty-four human lives the rapid transit subway under construction in this city is three-fifths completed. There have been only two notable disasters to call attention to the danger of life involved in the great undertaking. These cost the number of lives mentioned.

Few Accidents.

It is estimated that the task will occupy another year at least. The men in charge of the work are of the opinion that they have been fortunate thus far in reducing the peril of life and limb to the minimum. They say that after millions of people have been walking, driving, and riding in street cars for two years on the brink of an excavation extending for miles through the city, and thousands of men have been employed in hazardous underground work, the wonder is that the list of victims is not much longer.

It has been necessary to excavate 3,000,000 cubic yards of solid rock, and for months the contractors have been using one and one-half tons of dynamite a day for blasting.

GAS AND POWDER EXPLODE IN MINE

Seventeen Men Imprisoned in West Virginia Shaft Have Little Chance of Being Found Alive.

Northfork, W. Va., Sept. 16.—A gas and powder explosion occurred in the Big Four mine of the Algoma Coal and Coke company here as the result of which James Lester, an engineer; John Reckie, a Hungarian miner, and five colored miners are known to be imprisoned in the mine.

There is hardly a chance that the men can be recovered alive, as they are beyond a point where the explosion occurred. The gas and smoke is so thick that all rescuing parties have been driven back. H. F. Frank, a mine boss, and George Gasple, a Hungarian miner, succeeded in crawling over the fallen coal and slate after the explosion to the rights of the rescuing party and were taken out alive, although badly burned and nearly suffocated by the gas and smoke inhaled.

The explosion knocked down all the brettices for a quarter of a mile back toward the mine entrance, thus cutting out all the air from the men imprisoned behind the debris.

The coal in the mine is burning and there is no hope of extinguishing the flames until a new air passage can be built to the point of the explosion.

WASHINGTON'S NEW DIPLOMATIC CORPS

Many Changes Among the Foreign Embassies During This Winter.

Washington, D. C., September 16.—Special.—There will be a large number of changes in diplomatic circles this winter. The most important of all changes are the new French and British ambassadors, who will lead great life to the capital, especially the brilliant American wife of the British ambassador, Senora de Aspiroz, who would have been the dean of hostesses of the diplomatic corps were she here, will not return to Washington this winter. Her health has suffered much from her residence here, and her daughter, Senora de Perez, will take her place at the head of the ambassador's household.

General New Attaches.

A new Columbian minister, Senor Concha, a new Portuguese minister, a new Spanish minister, and an entirely new force for the Cuban legation, are yet to be introduced to Washington society. Senora Quesada, the Cuban minister's wife, speaks English, and is an accomplished woman.

Cordially Welcomed.

A number of young attaches have been added to the diplomatic list, all of whom will be welcomed by the lovers of dancing, as the foreigners are almost without exception graceful dancers. Among the young married attaches is Count Di Calere, first secretary of the Italian embassy, now absent, but who will arrive here with the Countess Di Calere early in the fall.

Altogether, much is expected from the diplomats this winter, and they will add to Washington society as they have to various resorts where they have summered.

ALL HONOR TO FRANCIS MURPHY

FORMER JANESVILLE MINISTER WRITES OF HIS WORK.

WILL PREACH TO ROOSEVELT

Rev. E. H. Pence Writes to Dr. James Mills on the Temperance Work.

Next Sunday a former Janesville pastor will have the honor of preaching to the president of the United States. On that day Rev. E. H. Pence, D. D., formerly pastor of the local Presbyterian church but now pastor of the Fort Street Presbyterian church of Detroit, Mich., will have President Theodore Roosevelt as a member of his congregation.

The fact of the near approaching visit of the distinguished chief of the nation conspired with other duties in preventing Rev. Pence from accepting an invitation sent him by Dr. James Mills to come to Janesville and join in greeting Francis Murphy. During his residence in this city Rev. Pence was one of the most enthusiastic workers in the Murphy League and his letter, which was read by Dr. James Mills at the meeting Sunday afternoon, will be of interest to his many friends in this city. The letter follows:

An Interesting Letter.
"My Dear Doctor: Your letter of the 5th instant came to hand this morning. The name of Francis Murphy is a mighty good one to conjure with, finding within me a deep longing to be with you on Sunday. His return is in part only formal for the spirit and essence of the man have been citizens of Janesville since he took habitation there in so many of our affections and the grateful remembrance of so many.

"I think that I can sympathetically look even now, through those eyes of his into faces which tell to him the story of manhood bought at the dear price that deep appetite puts upon the redemption of a soul. I believe, too, that I know how big is the jump of his heart at the thought of holding those hands and hearing those voices.

Sends Greetings.
"You may be well assured that only duties of the most pressing nature can compel me to send a negative response to your kind invitation. Tell the boys for me that the love in me for them grows with the years and that I thank God for the occasion which led me into their friendships. Tell Francis Murphy that my deepest heart thanks him for having been the means of first introducing me into those friendships. Tell him and the boys and those blessed mothers, wives, daughters, sisters and sweethearts whose prayers and tears, both of sorrow and joy, were so great a help to us, tell them all that the best meeting of the Francis Murphy League is yet to come. It will be up yonder, where Francis Murphy will lead us all again but in the act of throwing down our crowns at the feet of the Christ, from whom he first learned the great lesson he emphasized to us, namely, that love and sympathy and tender pity are the greatest powers the human life can know. "God bless him as he speaks to you on Sunday. God bless the League and that beloved city. Most sincerely yours, E. H. Pence."

The Sunday Theater.
In a personal letter to Dr. Mills, Rev. Pence has a word of congratulation concerning the closing of the Sunday theater. The following characteristic extracts from this letter will be read with pleasure.

"I cannot tell you how great is my longing to see Francis Murphy and the boys and all my friends in Janesville again. Next Sunday is our communion and the following Sunday President Roosevelt is to worship in Fort street church. You can imagine that I am busy enough and that I could not be out of the city at this time.

Host in Himself.
"Francis Murphy is enough in himself for any occasion. You need no one else to add anything to the force of his visit. No man can find the hearts of those people as he can. It will be a great event for him and for the cause in the city. Extend personally my most loving greetings and tell him that many of those days and nights are as fresh in my memory as if they transpired but yesterday.

"I am delighted that he lives to smell some of those bouquets of love and that we shall not need to stick them under his nose after he is dead and say 'Here smell that.' You remember that he discountenanced that sort of taffy, rather optaffy. No Roman general had a triumphant arrival which could equal that which he is to have on Sunday.

Congratulations.
"Accept my congratulations upon your aldermanic duties. The place and position need such as you. I am delighted to know that you have put the club to the Sunday night theater. When the camel gets its head under the tent, you may expect the rest of him soon. He has his head under already in Janesville. I fear, but the Sunday theater means his shoulders. You have that out, Good!"

Green County veterans held their annual meeting Monday.

FALL WEATHER CLOSES THE CAMPS

Janesville People Desert Their Summer Homes for Winter Quarters.

A majority of the campers located along Rock river are breaking up camp and returning to their homes. The cold nights of late have caused the pleasure seekers to think of home and a good warm house.

Sunday was a day of activity among the campers and at almost every cottage, the owners were engaged in storing all the common household goods and packing the best goods for transportation to the city.

Many River Homes.
Quite a number of Janesville people have cottages along the river and have a very enjoyable time. Most of the campers have steam and gasoline launches to carry them up and down stream. They are like the more fashionable campers at the seashore and about the lakes and start for home as soon as the cold weather sets in. There are at least twenty families that have cottages along the river that will be home in a day or two.

OTIS SKINNER AS LAZARRE

THE PLAY IS MOST EXCELLENT

Cleverly Supported and Has Magnificent Stage Setting as His Aid.

"Lazarre, truly you are Louis Capet, the lost Dauphin of France." Can one see and hear Otis Skinner proclaim that he is, King Louis, and not believe, that once upon a time the little Dauphin did live among the Onondas in New York state and later came to Wisconsin and ended his life among his foster brothers at Green Bay?

Surrounded by a strong cast with perfect stage settings with an interested and enthusiastic audience, Otis Skinner, last night presented his new play, "Lazarre" at the Myers Grand. From the time that the curtain rose on Lazarre lying on the cot in the room of the Count de Chaumont, on the shores of Lake George, until the curtain dropped at the end with Lazarre and his beloved Eagle in the log cabin at Green Bay with a calm passive Indian for a back ground, the audience was spellbound.

Following closely the lines of the book, Lazarre, the play portrays the awakening of the supposed Indian, his love for his teacher Eagle, his meeting face to face with the usurper Napoleon in the palace of the Tuilleries, his escape through the ancient secret door, his visit to his exiled sister in Russia and his final home in Wisconsin all follow one after the other in rapid succession.

Comedy Introduced
Comedy is introduced into the otherwise somber play by the English doctor, Chantry; his sweetheart, Annabel, and the court scene of Napoleon's court. Two Wisconsin people, Miss Jane Butt, and Mr. Walton Pyre, both have good parts that are well taken. As Ernestine, Miss Butt, portrays the French peasant who follows her King into the wilderness and as the chief of the Paris police and later as the butler of the exiled Count de Province and the Princess Marie, Mr. Pyre has an excellent chance to show his histrionic ability.

Skinner Is First
Prominently before all stands Lazarre. Mr. Skinner has never before tried a character that required so much of the cunning of the actor to portray. He acts the part, lives the part, he represents. He is ably supported by his wife, Maud Durbin, as Eagle, Walter Allen as Dr. Chantry, Walter Lewis as Skenedoah, the Indian, Bellinger as portrayed by F. Van Rensselaer and Charles B. Welles as Napoleon. Miss Nanette Comstock as Annabelle de Chaumont, Jane Butt as Ernestine and Marie Henley as the Countess de Favas with the court ladies at Napoleon's palace added zest to the play.

Settings Perfect
The stage settings were perfect and the wigwag scene of the Williams home on Lake George with the moon rising over the waters was one of the triumphs of stage ability. The costumes were all historically perfect from backwoods to Emperor's palace and throughout the whole duration of the play there was not a hitch to mar the performance.

ARE DOCTORED VERY CAREFULLY

A VETERINARIAN IN CHARGE AT GA. BRAITH'S STABLES.

VALUABLE HORSES ARE SOUND

The Ocean and Railway Trip Was a Very Hard One, and Two Died.

Ever since the importation of thirty-eight horses arrived in this city Sunday night a doctor has been almost constantly in the stables of Alex Galbraith. In roomy box stalls at the rear of the main building are four horses which were taken sick on the trip and are still in more or less serious condition. Two or three others are under the weather but are looking brighter hour by hour.

Carefully Doctored
Now and then an attendant enters a stall, forcing the horse's mouth open by a vigorous grasp of the lower jaw administers a generous dose of medicine from a capacious syringe. The doctor closely notes the effect on the horse and approving nods go the round of the little circle of onlookers. If the symptoms are favorable.

Pronounced Dead
One horse was pronounced dead Sunday night. There was absolutely no pulse and only a nervous twitching of the legs and it looked as though another loss was to be added to the two that had already succumbed. Suddenly the horse's pulse began to beat feebly and now the horse's owner is several thousand dollars better off than he expected to be.

In the case of another horse all depended on whether or not a sweat occurred in the course of two hours. "The usual symptoms don't work with these heavy stallions," said the doctor. "Their flesh is too thick and while they seem from outward signs to be recovering, they may be dying internally." In this particular instance it was the most valuable of all the ailing horses, a pensive Suffolk stallion, that was ill, and the signs of recovery were anxiously watched.

A Hard Trip
As is usual at this season of the year, the passage from Glasgow was rough, and the horses had a hard time of it. Several of them would not lie down from the time they were taken on board the boat until they were brought to the Galbraith stables in Janesville. The reason for this, the men say, is that they can better brace themselves against the movements of the vessel or the train when in an erect position. The jolting and jarring on the cars is considered much worse than the movement of the boat.

On The Journey
Four men were in charge of the horses on the boat and in the cars. While on the ocean the horses were all together in the stalls and the men were together, but on land the animals were consigned to four cars and one man was put in charge of one. It was during the railroad trip that two horses were taken sick and died from congestion of the lungs.

THE QUESTION OF TRUSTS.
President Roosevelt, in his recent tour of New England, took occasion to say some very sensible things about combinations of capital commonly called trusts. He had no sympathy with the sentiment so freely expressed, "Down with the trusts," but he was in hearty accord with any intelligent effort to regulate any evils that the trust might produce. He recognized in the trust the evidences of prosperity, and it was only necessary to go back in history nine years to discover a period when neither prosperity nor the trust existed.

There were two central thoughts contained in every speech made by the president, on this much discussed question. One was, that corporations, doing an interstate business, should be responsible to some authority, and that authority should be the general government. He did not recommend arbitrary or hasty measures, but advised the enactment of wise and wholesome measures. He would not cripple great industries, but protect them, as well as the people by proper supervision.

The other thought, which is of greater significance, is that the individual is responsible, and that no law will be effective and judicious, unless back of it is the strong moral sentiment of justice between man and man.

The president does not believe that while the rich are growing richer the poor are growing poorer, and he has no time for the doctrine so popular just now that the poor man is being oppressed by capital. There is nothing populist or socialist about the ideas advanced by the chief magistrate. He grasps the situation and is careful not to encourage class distinction or class hatred.

The question of individual responsibility is of the greatest importance and all too frequently overlooked both by capital and labor. Every American citizen is, in a large sense a sovereign. He enjoys freedom of speech and freedom of action in greater degree than do the citizens of any other country. This freedom is vouchsafed him because he is law abiding not through fear of the law, but because of his love and respect for it. He regards the rights of others as sacred, and practices the golden rule because he is honest at heart. The rights of property as well as the rights of labor are recognized and generally regarded.

The great code of laws that govern in this country, and that give to American citizenship the great honor attached to the title, are the unwritten laws which never grace the pages of any statute book.

The nation has prospered, and will continue to prosper in proportion to the observance of the laws. If the time ever comes in this fair land when liberty is sacrificed to license, a reign of anarchy will speedily follow.

The nation has its periods of unrest and conditions are more or less disturbed at the present time, but the great underlying principles which have always governed, will continue to govern. The individual citizen is the unit of the nation, and the trend of public sentiment is toward the right and righteousness. The president is wise in emphasizing the importance of personal responsibility.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CONDUCT.
Professor Ladd of Yale has recently published a work on the philosophy of conduct, in which he holds the churches responsible for indifference and neglect in affairs of government. He claims that the average religious convention is destitute of any apparent interest in state or municipal government, while the average preacher regards politics as a device of the evil one. Professor Ladd has unearthed a large problem, and one that should be generally discussed. When it is considered that one third of the population of the United States are church members, the fact will be recognized that the power to govern is largely in the hands and influence of the church, and yet is safe to say that the saloon, representing numerically only a fragment, is a greater power in government.

Many church members and many ministers relieve themselves of all responsibility in affairs of government by refusing to become a party to it. They stay away from the caucus and convention and complain about how the city or state is governed. They talk glibly about foreign missions, educational and religious enterprises, but ignore the duties of citizenship.

There are 55 saloons in Janesville and 3000 church members, but the saloon vote and influence is regarded of more importance than the church vote. Janesville is no exception to the rule. The same conditions prevail in most sections of the country, and it is a sad comment on the churches.

This city, or any other in the land, can have good government if the better class of citizens decide that they want it, and will go about intelligently to secure it. The question of good government and pure politics is just as important for pulpits as for any other practical moral question.

The individual church member who wraps himself in a cloak of self-righteousness, and says by word and action, "I am not responsible," is a poor excuse for a citizen. If Professor Ladd succeeds in arousing the churches to a sense of interest and obligation along the lines of personal responsibility, he will accomplish a good work.

Manitowoc is now under fire for its silly society girls who took a trolley ride dressed in blue overalls and red bandanna handkerchiefs. If these self-same so-called society leaders had to cook their tired fathers' and mothers' dinners and take care of the house they would not find time for such foolishness as they seem to be indulging in.

Kentucky has at last found a real true man. An exchange says: "After the groom had thrown the bride's two brothers from the window he returned to the altar and was quietly married." Think of that for Kentucky! No one killed, maimed or hurt at all and at a wedding too.

Now Bryanism has been dropped by Wisconsin democrats maybe Bryan will drop them. Let us hope so. While it has assured the success of the republican party still the name of Bryan is becoming tiresome to the people at large.

The forest fires in Oregon and Washington were kindled by slashings from a mill that they were burning up. Think of the loss of good timber from that one spark.

Northern Wisconsin residents claim that the winters are not as cold as they used to be. Let us hope not if coal does not come down. Rather in the words of Byron: "Let undying summer gild us yet."

The question is asked can not the Milwaukee Journal through its Mr. Usher predict the defeat of Mayor Rose by 100,000 so that the mayor will have a chance to win.

Won't it be fun when we all go to Madison and see John C. Spooner made the unanimous choice of the republican legislature by an "unconditional" vote.

Sir Thomas Lipton is very anxious to win that tea cup that the United States won from England so long ago and which so many men have tried in vain to lift.

If the gas from some of the inflated propositions of Beaumont are burned off then the actual loss of property is worth the sacrifice.

After all this talk about stopping the packers' trust the old thing is actually organized and goes into operation in a few days.

The Stevens Point Journal characterizes Mayor Rose and his speeches as "The frothy mouthed jollier." Shame on you Journal.

Is it not about time for that long promised Indian summer to put in appearance? Let us have some right away.

PRESS COMMENT.
Omaha World-Herald: This Frenchman who has invented a gun that is discharged without a flash and without a sound must use a dumb-dumb bullet.

detake to haul Mr. Watterson off the prostrate form of ex-President Cleveland.

Detroit Free Press: Colonel Watterson should remember that a democratic national convention once nominated Mr. Cleveland because of the enemies he had the good taste to make.

Chicago Record-Herald: A Pittsburgh clubman has been arrested for stealing balls. Yet some people are trying to make the public believe that it is dying out.

Philadelphia Press: Governor Cleveland is understood to be convinced that the mint-julep crop grown in the vicinity of Louisville is unusually large and powerful this year.

Buffalo Express: A Philadelphia man who has been courting a woman for twenty-one years has finally won her by whistling "Darling I Am Growing Old." A girl in any other town would have demanded that he grow young.

Nebraska State Journal: Judge John H. Reagan of Texas seems to hold the record for the strenuous life. He has held office continually, so the Texas newspapers claim, for sixty years, under three flags, that of the "lone star," the Star and Stripes and the stars and bars, and has passed his eighty-third milestone.

Boston Journal: President Truesdale of the Lackawanna railroad is quoted, apropos of the coal strike, as speaking of "differences which concern us and our employees and no body else." Mr. Truesdale is mistaken. Differences which force the price of coal up to $11 and $12 a ton concern the public in a very vital way.

Eau Claire Leader: The Milwaukee platform says that the democratic party has always been a friend of honest taxation. This is always a standard plank in all platforms for it reads well in print. The republican party now in power in Wisconsin was the first to put it in force. Every man is now assessed for what he actually possesses.

Milwaukee Journal: The re-election of A. F. Warden as chairman of the democratic state committee is a merited recognition of eminent service. The management of the party affairs in his hands has been most excellent and honorable throughout. In his work he has had constantly to steer clear of entanglements with factions, while giving each diverse interest a just and equal consideration. It takes talent and a remarkable fairness in judgment to pass this ordeal without at some time falling down. This orator Mr. Warden passed, and is again entrusted with the duty of heading the party.

Whitewater Register: Dave Rose says that if he got the nomination of the democrats for governor he would get a special car and talk in every town in the state. La Follette intends to conduct his campaign in the same manner. The patient "busted" or any other citizen who shall attempt to gather from their remarks a compatible idea of what is right and wrong in the present situation, and what should be done in the future, will either end by voting for Carrie Nation or by becoming a candidate for a padded suite in the state's free hostelry at Mendota.

A NOVEL IDEA IS FORMULATED

JANESVILLE HAS A RED CROSS MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

WHICH IS NOW INCORPORATED

Object is to Furnish the Best Medical Aid at a Moderate Cost.

H. L. Mason of Denver, Colo., has been in the city for the last two weeks organizing the Janesville Red Cross Medical association with headquarters in this city. The association is incorporated the officers being J. F. Pember, President; George W. Elfield, Secretary, and F. D. Kimball, Treasurer.

The nature of the business to be transacted by the association shall not be for pecuniary profit, and no dividend shall be declared, but for charitable work, furnishing hospital service and medical aid. The same to be rendered under the direction of the officers of the association, and as may be provided by the by-laws thereof to its members, and to such other needy and dependent persons resident in said county as may be found entitled thereto, after inquiry by the proper officers pursuant to the laws of the association.

No Capital Stock

There will be no capital stock. Any person may become a member "If elected by their members and any person may become an associate member without privilege to vote by paying dues and being accepted as provided by the by-laws. Members and associated members shall be discharged or expelled by the vote of the directors."

Care For Poor

The main object of the association is to provide a fund kept up by small monthly payments on the members whereby the poor and needy can secure medical attendance in case of sickness and a proper burial in case of death.

Cost of Membership.

The cost of becoming a member for adults is 50 cents per month or with hospital service $1.00 per month. All bills for these services are paid by the association. One good point about the order is that there are no salaries paid, the business being conducted by the officers of the association.

Co-Operative

It is really a co-operative plan whereby the poor and needy are taken care of by those better able. A member may be dropped for not paying dues, but no poor or needy member is ever dropped. If after proper investigation by the officers they find the member is unable to pay the assessment.

Its Objects

The object of the association is to furnish the best aid in case of sickness or accident individually or to families at a nominal and fixed cost to members of the association.

CHANGES PLANNED FOR FIRE STATION

Quarters of the West Side Department Will Be Made More Convenient.

As soon as the city officers vacate the West Side fire station the building will undergo numerous changes not only in regard to the men's quarters but on the lower floor where the fire apparatus is stored. The floor plan will be so arranged that all the apparatus can stand in a row facing the front entrance. The horse stalls in the rear will be changed and the space between the trucks narrowed up. The front doors will also be changed and give the department a better chance to get out in quick time.

These changes when made will put the station in first class shape so that it will compare favorably with the fire stations of the larger cities.

CITY HALL WILL BE ACCEPTED

Formal Action of the Common Council to Be Taken at Tonight's Meeting.

The new city hall is now about finished and will be recommended for acceptance at the meeting of the council this evening. The building committee in company with Architect Rush and Contractor Rowson made a thorough examination of the building yesterday and were satisfied that the plans have been fully carried out by the contractors and that the building is an honor to the city and its designers. In all probability there will be no hesitancy on the part of the council about accepting the structure on the recommendation of the building committee.

Regarding daily newspapers, Mahlin's Magazine for August says: "No man is so limited in his educational and mental resources that he cannot find in the same paper matters of interest and profit entirely within the scope of his limited abilities. No hamlet is so isolated that the daily paper cannot reach it as a daily visitor; no populous section of the metropolis is so congested that it is not permeated by the same influence."

Attend the Walworth county fair. New 1902 honey. Nash.

His Idea of Absent-Mindedness. Counselor E., while cross-examining a witness in a will contest, asked him what was his conception of absent-mindedness, the witness having characterized the decedent as exceedingly absent-minded. The witness replied: "I should say that a man who thought he left his watch at home and took it out of his pocket to see if he had time to go home and get it was a 'leetle' absent-minded."

MANY CHILDREN ATTEND SCHOOL

OVER TWO THOUSAND STUDENTS ARE NOW ENROLLED.

PUPILS IN KINDERGARTENS

In Spite of Additional Rooms, Many of the Buildings Are Crowded.

Unusually large attendance in all the buildings marked the opening of the public schools yesterday. At the Lincoln school, where two new grades have been established, the rooms are crowded to their full capacity and thirty-six sixth grade pupils are quartered in the newly finished room on the attic floor. Fifty-five pupils, with more to follow, enrolled in the eighth grade of this school, necessitating the transfer of several of them to the Washington school.

Large Freshman Class

There is the customary large attendance at the High school. The Freshman class is a very large one this year and but comparatively few students have dropped out of the other classes. Many who last spring said that they intended to abandon the High school course have returned to their studies. The exact enrollment in the High school is not known, yet it is between four and five hundred.

Grade Schools Crowded

The enrollment on the opening day in the graded schools shows the largest attendance, 237 pupils, at the Adams school. The Jefferson building ranks second with 235 pupils and the Lincoln is third with 221. The Washington has 290, the Webster 134, the Douglas 127, the Grant 119 and the Jackson 53. The total enrollment in the graded schools is 1,722.

The largest attendance in any one grade is in the second grade at the Adams school where fifty pupils are enrolled. The enrollment in the first grade of the same school is but one less, being forty-nine.

Kindergarten Pupils

That the new kindergartens meet a demand is evidenced by the large attendance of little tots at their opening. It is a curious fact that the largest attendance is from the Fourth and Fifth wards where there was considerable opposition to the movement. Forty-four little ones, between the ages of four and six years, are enrolled at the Webster school kindergarten, forty at the Jefferson, twenty-eight at the Adams and twenty-two at the Washington, making a total enrollment of 124 pupils in the kindergartens.

END OF TROUBLE NOT IN SIGHT

Mitchell Speaks of His Interview with Governor Stone and Says Nothing of a Practical Nature Was Done at Harrisburg Meeting.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 16.—There is to be a conference here between Mr. Mitchell, the three district presidents, W. B. Wilson, the national secretary and treasurer, who comes from Indianapolis for the express purpose; Samuel Campers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Bishop Fallows of Chicago. Mr. Campers, it is said, has some proposition to make which will insure steady relief for the striking miners all winter, should they decide to continue the battle. The conference, however, aside from this outside incident of Mr. Wilson's visit, will be in the nature of a consideration of the situation at this stage of the strike.

Will Discuss Relief.
Undoubtedly the question of relief will demand a careful study and will occupy much time at the conference. But there are other critical matters. All the indications point on the one hand toward an extended and determined effort to open more coal mines and toward increasing the number of men employed in those that are already in operation. On the other hand, there are reports of resolutions passed by many of the locals to the effect that the nonunion mining has got to come to an end.

Interview with Mitchell.
In an interview John Mitchell said: "I can't predict when the anthracite strike will be settled. If anything is being done by the other side, I don't know of it."

"Nothing toward a settlement was accomplished at the Harrisburg conference between Governor Stone of Pennsylvania, myself, the presidents of the three anthracite districts, and others who have been trying to end the strike. Nothing, in fact, was contemplated. We simply met and discussed the causes and progress of the strike."

"Did Governor Stone represent J. Pierpont Morgan or any of the anthracite presidents?"
"I did not understand that he was representing anyone besides himself." Settlement No Nearer.
"Is a settlement any nearer because of the conference?"
"No."

"Did Governor Stone propose that the miners should return to work on a promise of concessions being made forward by the operators?"
"No proposition of that kind was submitted. There is no foundation for the report that the men are to return to work on a promise that the operators will make concessions and arbitrate afterward."

"Would the miners return to work under such an agreement?"
"They would not. There have been no desertions among the strikers. They feel certain of their ability to win."

"Are you as confident as ever of winning?"
"I am certainly very hopeful now that the strike will be ended in our favor."

Relief Fund Grows.
The big relief fund that is being collected at the national headquarters in Indianapolis, Mitchell says, is proving sufficient to relieve the distress in the region. About 25,000 miners have left the region since the strike began, leaving about 130,000, he explained, to be cared for.

"Are the troops to be withdrawn from the region?"
"Not that I know of. All the information I have on the matter is what I get from the papers. There is no need of the troops, however, as the men are orderly. They are keeping within the law."

"Is any coal being taken out of the region?"
"A little is going out, but no new coal is being mined. Most of the coal now being shipped was mined before the strike began. No mines are being started and no members of the organization are returning to work."

SHAW MAY MAKE RADICAL MOVE

FEDERAL BONDS NOT NEEDED

Law Provides That the Secretary May Issue Circulation on Other Security and He May Accept Such Paper as He Deems to Be Adequate.

Washington, Sept. 16.—"No secretary has yet had the nerve to give national banks government funds on deposit except upon government bonds being given as security," said an official of the treasury, "but there is nothing in the law which would prevent the secretary accepting other securities. National banks at the present time, because of the scarcity of government bonds, are finding it impossible materially to increase their circulation to meet the demands of the fall. The customs receipts are piling up in the subtreasuries, drawing considerable money out of the national banks, and for the time being retarding from circulation. The premium upon government bonds, which prohibits the national banks from purchasing them to secure circulation, also operates with equal force in preventing them depositing government bonds as security for increased government deposits."

Secretary Has Discretion.
"The law on the security question reads: 'The Secretary of the Treasury shall require the association (national banks) thus designated to give satisfactory security by the deposit of United States bonds or otherwise for the safe-keeping and prompt payment of the public money deposited with them.' There can be no doubt, with government bonds selling at a prohibitory premium, and a scarcity of circulation to meet the regular crop moving demands and increased importation, that the Secretary of the Treasury can relieve the situation by accepting 'satisfactory security' or other than government bonds. Municipal bonds and other securities may, in these days of careful financing, be as safe in guaranteeing deposits as government bonds."

No Money Stringency.
It has been reported here for several days that Secretary Shaw would not permit a money stringency. Realizing fully the drain upon the banks due to the increased imports, the secretary has attempted relief by offering to increase the circulation of national banks, but now that it is demonstrated that these institutions cannot pay the premium demanded upon government bonds for the purpose of using them to secure new circulation, and being impressed with the argument that government bonds cannot be obtained as security for government deposits, it is stated upon excellent authority that he is seriously considering a plan to place deposits upon other security.

REBELS PLAN TO GET MILLIONS

Propose to Sell Panama Canal Rights to United States.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The rebels on the isthmus of Panama hope to seize the canal territory, the Colombian legislation there has been informed, to hold it until the franchise granted to the new Panama company has expired, and then to sell the right to the United States for $10,000,000 and divide up the money. Legation Secretary Herran said that the rebel leaders have told their plans to their followers and advised them to make the greatest sacrifices for success. A pamphlet has been prepared for distribution among the rebels, setting forth that the franchise will expire in ten years, and the revolution must be continued until the franchise lapses. If it is, the pamphlet says, the government at Bogota will give up the right and the victors can negotiate with the United States.

Committee of the Ohio House Makes Progress Slowly.

Columbus, O., Sept. 16.—The select committee of the lower branch of the Ohio legislature has voted to adopt the Nash municipal code bill as a basis for a measure to be presented to the house. HAVE YOU SHOT CANVAS BACK?

A STORY OF THE LATE BURTON F. NOWLAN.

FROM SPORTS AFIELD, 1900

The Delights and Trials of a True Hunter Are Depicted in an Interesting Manner.

The following interesting story of canvas back duck shooting, was written by the late Burton F. Nowlan, and published in the Sports Afield in 1900. It will be read with interest by Gazette readers:

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four—"

"Bang!"

An instant later the canvasback lies lifeless in my boat.

Did you ever shoot canvasback? No?

Then your life is not yet complete.

The canvasback is the noblest bird that flies, and his destruction is the noblest sport of all.

Anybody can kill the lumbering prairie chicken, or slay the unsuspecting mallard as he sails majestically in the pond hole, but none but artists—or mechanics, rather—can kill the wary canvas one shot may cripple this boat at the dock of the Caracou club, prince of ducks.

But the crippled canvasback knows more tricks by which to escape than any accomplished jill-breaker.

The sun had not yet put in an appearance when I stepped into my boat at the dock of the Caracou club, at Lake Koshkonong—famed as the Chesapeake bay of the west, and for its canvasback shooting.

My gun—a Remington ejector, with the editor's permission—lies between my knees with the muzzle resting on a piece of cord stretched from gunwale to gunwale.

Under the decking at my right hand is the shell box filled with cartridges loaded with smokeless powder, and number one and number three shot.

At my left hand lies the field glasses. I am wearing canvas clothing lined with macbrann and my sweater is fleecy and warm.

Heavy mittens protect my hands, and my feet are encased in lumbermen's stockings and rubbers—for the November winds blow chill, and the "fair weather hunter" has about as much show to kill a canvasback as he has to wing an airship with jackknives shot.

A few strokes of the springy spruce paddle sends my boat skimming along the rush skirt shore.

A thick mist rises from the quiet lake, and in the gray light of just before the dawn's half hour, all objects take on a weird and exaggerated shape.

A rush of wings above my head brings me from my reverie.

How the sound makes my blood tingle! I feel as if my veins would burst; a flock of teal had come skimming through the mist, and startled at the sight of my boat, flew only as a frightened teal can fly—faster than the swiftest railway train that ever sped on strips of steel; how every nerve is awakened and set to vibrating by such a sound!

Startled mallards quack hoarsely and "tower" into the sky as I rudely break into their slumbers.

Silent but swift-winged blackheads cleave the air in the efforts to escape. Muddens "tread water" noisily, and black birds pipe a saucy note.

But they are safe.

This is my day to kill canvasback. Soon the blind is reached. It is a simple shelter of willows and reeds arranged to hide the boat in which the shooter lies on his back.

In front of the blind a "bunch" of five score cedar decoys—three-fourths of which are snowy backed counterfeits of the male "canvass"—bod lazily at anchor.

I hastily push my boat into the shelter, and arrange my "traps" for instant use.

The gun must lie ready for rapid execution; the shells must be reached without ado; the field glasses must be within easy grasp.

Mr. Canvasback will escape any shooter who makes more than one motion to accomplish a purpose.

The lightning eastern horizon tells me that the sun is about to peep over the edge of the universe as I settle myself comfortably in the boat.

A few moments later a dozen black spots appear in the distance, outlined strongly against the sky behind which Old Sol has made his bed.

I grasp the field glasses in eager anticipation and take a look.

The spots are ducks—canvassback—and they are all headed toward my blind.

Soon they take shape and I can see their long graceful necks outstretched. Verily on the wings of the wind they swing toward me.

"Kow-o-o-o! kow-o-o-o!" I call as they are about to turn in a big circle and go in another direction.

The leader of the flock hears my call and inclines his head. I call again, and the leader swings toward my decoys with the flock in close order behind him.

I call gently, almost under my breath, as the noble birds come in.

What a sight!

The sun peeps above the horizon, and a long ray falls athwart the snowy back of the leader of the flock! I can see his sharp red eyes snapping in the tireless watch for danger! What a gracefully formed maroon head, and what a shiny black bill!

Then I rise and swing around into the wind as I grasp my gun, and rise to a sitting position.

Pandemonium!

Long necks become longer, sharp eyes become sharper, and swiftly moving pinions move swifter!

Swinging my gun until the muzzle points at an imaginary spot four feet ahead of the leader, I press the trigger.

"Bang!"

Death leaps down the Damascus tube, and wings its way from the muzzle of the twelve gauge.

The leader doubles into a shapeless body, and tumbles end over end into the water.

Then I swing ahead of the second bird, and again press the trigger.

Down comes the second bird all in a heap.

"Ah! I killed them both stone dead that time!" I muse as I open the gun to insert fresh shells.

The ejector throws the empty cases ten feet from me, and they strike the water with a "plump" that is strangely magnified by the clear morning air.

Both of my ducks lie motionless, but as the shells strike the water, one of them "comes too."

"Been playing possum," I remark to myself, and then I realize that I am to have a chase.

Quickly removing the shells from the gun I slip the cartridges loaded with number seven shot in place of the ones and threes.

But what, in the brief moment necessary to make the change, has become of my canvassback?

I strain my eyes but do not see him.

Perhaps I sigh somewhat wearily as I reach for the glass, for although killing a crippled canvassback is the most exciting sport of all, you can not be sure of your bird until you have him in the boat.

I have paddled two miles, and fired twelve shots at a "canvasscrip," and then lost him.

Two hundred feet beyond the farthest decoy the wily bird sticks up his head. I thrust the paddle deep into the water, and apply all my strength.

The light boat fairly leaps, and the water foams out from beneath the keel with a musical sound.

The duck dives again. Where will he come up next? Nobody knows—except the mechanic—but I know.

When he dives again I paddle after him. The instant his bill appears above water, I seize the gun.

Too late. The sleek red head goes under water again before I can pull the trigger.

Fifteen minutes of this work convinces me that the duck is not seriously injured, and I realize that I must change my tactics.

Mr. Canvasback can dive and swim under water all day, while I am getting tired from my exertions.

Then I try the mechanic's strategy.

When the bird dives, his tail, of course, will be the last part of him to disappear from view, so I watch his tail.

He will swim straight under water, and a simple calculation tells me where to expect him to come up.

"Going to the left this time," I muse as he dives, and then I begin to count—one, two, three—and find that the duck was under water thirty seconds.

When he dives again, he will stay under twenty-eight seconds, and so on until he has rested enough to make another thirty-second subterranean trip possible.

He comes to the surface, and dives again, but I lost track of his stubby tail feathers in the ripples, and do not know where he went.

I am now a half a mile out in the lake, and my duck is not in sight.

Seeing a big flock of birds circle about my decoys makes me feel that I am wasting my time, but I hate to give up.

What is that speck I see twenty rods away? I seize the glass and look. It is the tip of the bill of my canvassback.

Then I paddle lustily. I gain on the living bird, and soon I am in range.

Twice I count twenty-five, drop the paddle, seize the gun, and wait for the duck to come to the surface, only to see but the tip of his bill as he takes in air, and sinks again.

The third time I am more fortunate.

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three—"

"Bang!"

The graceful head falls to one side; a white back appears; a few convulsive kicks; a shudder; and my game is dead.

I pick him up, shake the water from his wings, and something out his feathers with my hand, tenderly lay him on the hay in the bottom of my boat.

What a handsome bird he is! How firm I will find his celery-seasoned flesh! What a shame to kill him!

Then I paddle back to the blind, and take a rest and a smoke.

But few birds are flying now, and I only kill two more—one stone dead, and the other before he can dive after a broken wing brings him down.

But such sport!

To kill one canvassback—the bird that fights like a black bass as long as a breath remains in his body, it is better than to kill four hundred bluebirds, or other common ducks, for, as I said before, any one can kill the ordinary ducks, but to slay the canvassback taxes the artist—or rather the mechanic.

SEEKS ELIXIR OF LIFE AND LOSES HIS REASON

New York Doctor Believes Sun's Rays Can Be Stored So as to Cause Longevity.

New York, Sept. 15.—Long study on the problem of compounding an elixir that shall enable man to live forever has driven Dr. Lorenzo Kohnstamm insane.

His mind, which had been tottering for some time, gave way, and he is now a patient in the insane pavilion at Bellevue.

The problem of prolonging life infinitely engaged Dr. Kohnstamm when he was a student in college. In connection with this he studied on a plan to utilize the rays of the sun in the treatment of disease.

It is his theory that the sun's heat can be bottled or otherwise stored and administered to cure all his ordinary medicine is administered. This sun treatment was part of his plan for the prolongation of the life of his patients.

"I believe," said the doctor in Bellevue, "that the time is coming when we will have perpetual life. I am on the high road to the discovery, but I am not going to give away my secrets."

WEEKLY MARKET LETTER.

While the market as yet shows no material advance, it is encouraging, taking into consideration all we have to contend with, that prices are no lower than they have averaged for three months past.

In fact the range in the price of September wheat yesterday, from 71½ to 73½, is about what it was selling for the middle of May.

The persistent short selling by the bears, and not the pressure of cash wheat, is the cause of December wheat ruling a discount of over 4 cents under the September.

They are in as bad a position in the December as they found themselves in the July and now in the September, and I believe will also be forced to cover the December they are short at big losses.

It looks now as if the December wheat will soon be a premium over the May.

There is every evidence that we are on the eve of a sentiment and a considerable advance in prices, which, within the next few months if not in the near future, will develop into one of the biggest bull markets ever experienced on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Once the market gets on new ground speculation will increase to an extent that will carry prices to a much higher level, and I believe the time to buy wheat is right now.

There is a bare possibility of a temporary decline from prices now ruling against the probability of ten times as much advance.

Once the market of September wheat gets over 70 cents it will go to 75 cents very easy; at above 75 cents there will be ten times as many bulls as there are now, and instead of ten times as many buyers there will be hundreds anxiously and confidently buying.

Wherever there has not been one for some months past. The history of speculation is that after the market has advanced buyers increase in number.

When that condition prevails all of us will wonder why any one stood by and saw wheat selling at under 70 cents, almost bankrupt prices, for months without buying some.

The government report, published on Wednesday, was sensationally bullish, possibly a little under the final out turn, but according to my private advice, which cover every section of the country, it is not far from the facts.

The government report indicates a crop of less than 600,000,000 bushels, and it looks as if the requirements from us will be fully as large as a year ago.

Exports to an extent are running larger than any body; even the most rampant bull, expected, and with a crop say 150,000,000 bushels less than a year ago, it is hard to see wherefrom we are going to supply any such demand and at the same time supply the demand from our own people without putting prices to a very high level, probably higher than any one now believes possible.

It looks like a repetition of one year ago, when foreigners quietly bought immense quantities of us and later when that fact developed, prices here advanced very rapidly to over 80 cents and held there for almost six months.

We had a larger crop and larger reserves a year ago than we have now and prices, in my opinion, should advance at least as high, if not higher.

The corn market was a very strong affair all week and the feeling is growing that corn will be worth rather over than under 40 cents during the next twelve months.

The deferred crops have been sold to a standstill on the indicated crop, which, judging from my private advice, will turn out to be much smaller than is generally expected, probably not over 2,250,000,000 bushels.

The demand for it will be enormous. There is no stock of old corn left, and we will have only the one crop to supply us for fourteen months to come.

It would not surprise me to see May corn work up to 50 cents a bushel within the next six months, and if you buy it around 40 cents, I do not think you will ever have cause to regret.

The growing crop is not entirely out of danger from frost, in fact, in many sections it will take at least two weeks more.

A correspondent at Evansville, Ind., writes me as follows: "It will require at least three weeks more to save our corn crop from frost and some of the late planted will not be safe until October 10."

Another correspondent at Topeka, Kan., writes me as follows: "The corn is ripening nicely south of us and new corn in wagons in some towns from a distance appears dry enough to grind, but when you break it open it is still very snappy and will take several weeks of drying weather to make it even fit to husk, so I do not think there will be any contract corn from the new crop for some time."

I have many reports from other sections further north of a similar nature, but quote these for the reason they are south far enough and in a territory where it was generally thought the crop was made, and from Kansas we have been led to believe new corn was fit to shell and dry enough to grade No. 2.

During the last forty-eight hours killing frosts were reported from the most important corn raising sections; but how much damage has been done remains to be found out.

Not since 1890 have we had damage from a frost, and it is a strange coincidence that in that year it occurred on exactly the same days, the nights of September 11th and 12th.

In that year corn sold up very sharply to 50 cents for May corn. It certainly does not look like a safe proposition to be short of December corn at 15 cents under the price of September or cash corn, and May corn at almost 20 cents under.

All months of oats are working up toward the 35 cent level. I believe September will go out above there, and before December and May come around I think they, too, will sell up to that or higher.

With the price of good cash oats above 35 cents the future months, which means Standard oats or the best quality, should also be worth that, and I do not think you will lose any money buying December or May oats at around 31 to 32 cents, which argument I have adhered to for months past.

Provisions were the duldest market on the floor. They are too high and should sell lower, unless corn does advance considerably. Of course,

JUSTICE

Is portrayed as a woman, yet her sex might complain that they get scant benefit of her powers.

There is little justice, it would seem, in the suffering that many women undergo month after month.

Justice acts upon the legal maxim that ignorance of the law cannot be pleaded in mitigation of punishment.

It is ignorance which causes so much womanly suffering. Ignorance of the requirements of womanly health; ignorance on the part of those who attempt to cure and fail, and ignorance of the fact that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures womanly diseases.

It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"When I first wrote to Doctor Pierce concerning my health," says Mrs. Mollie B. Carpenter, of Linhart, Cumberland Co., Tenn., "I could only write a few words until I would have to rest; was so weak I could hardly walk. Words cannot express my sufferings; dizziness of sight, palpitation, shortness of breath, black spots or else shining lights before my eyes, terrible headache, numbness in my arms and hands and tongue, also my jaws would get numb; constipation, falling of the uterus, disagreeable drains, soreness through my bowels; in fact I was distressed from head to foot. Now I can do my own washing and cooking. I can take a ten quart pail in one hand and a six quart pail in the other (full of water), and carry both one-fourth of a mile and never stop to rest. I am as heavy as I was at 15 years (125 pounds). I used thirty bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and twenty-five vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.'"
